

“Life is too short to drink bad, overpriced wine.”

We believe that wine is an essential component to every meal. Wine makes our food taste better and assists in the digestive process. To that end, we will continually strive to offer our customers quality wines both by the glass and by the bottle that compliment each item on our menu. More importantly, we will offer our wines at affordable prices.

“Eurasian Continental,” best describes the What If’s... cuisine. Thus, we have chosen to build our wine program around North American wines. Approximately eighty percent of our offerings are from California and the Pacific Northwest. Notwithstanding, we also offer wines from other regions by the bottle and glass that provide variety in styles and exceptional value. In establishing our wine program we have chosen to concentrate first on our wine-by-the-glass selections while gradually building a first-class wine list. Obviously there are wines we would like to offer on our list that we have delayed acquiring as we develop and expand our list over time. Nevertheless, our guests’ suggestions are very important to us. If there is a wine that you personally enjoy that we do not feature, we encourage you to recommend your favorite. While we do not promise to honor every request, we will give careful consideration to all suggestions.

Our Mark-up: There are countless formulas restaurants employ to price their wines. Too frequently, restaurants overprice their wine selections, assuming that guests are unaware of the retail prices of wines. As a result, mark-ups of 200-400 percent of the retail prices are not uncommon in restaurants. Given the state of our economy, we believe that most of our customers are generally knowledgeable about the cost of wine. To that end, while we are in business to profit, we pledge to be affordable.
